Producer of various fresh & dried fruit & vegetable

was founded in 2008 with the purpose of production and packaging of various fresh and dried fruit and vegetable. The process of finishing the production lines was completed in 2011 and the foundation officially started its activity in the presence of Tehran's governor in the same year. From the very beginning, providing the desired products with 1st grade quality has been a must in the management's overall policy.

The company's products are categorized into two groups: Dried and Fresh. The fresh products are prepared daily and based on the orders places by the costumer with an approach that guarantees high quality and competitive price.

The process for preparing the dried products is based on preserving the taste and the aroma of the primitive material without the aid of any sort of additives (either authorized or unauthorized). This feature distinguishes this company's product from a majority of rival goods currently available in the market. The use of the appropriate disinfectant solution has rendered the application of other complementary and not-so-useful procedures such as Gamma Radiation unnecessary.

Delta Ala Sabz's performance history proves that we are in the business of delivering products via a safe and sanitary procedure with no additive substances.

Production Process

►►► The production process, which can be described in three general frameworks, can be summarized as below:

- Purchase Control: The preliminary feed is inspected prior to entering the product line and in case of mismatching the required standards, it shall be discarded.
- The Cleaning: The initial ingredient is cleaned by trained personnel in order to exclude any undesired remains and enters the washing phase.
- 1st and 2nd Washing Phases: During these two stages, the primary material passes through de-mudding baths in order to become free of mud, stones and other discrepancies. Disinfection using a proper dosage is also performed on this stage depending on the contamination type.
- 3rd Washing Stage: The elementary ingredient passes through an automated washing machine, which employs circular motion and water pressure in order to separate the dross. It is needless to say that the inner flow of the fresh water and the outer flow of the used water are constantly monitored in order to preserve the quality of the tub water at a certain degree.
- 4th Washing Stage: In this stage the primary material is floated in the washing device. Using the water pressure and the douches on the inner top of the tub, a turbulent motion is created which results in the full wash and also disinfection by the aid of a certain dose of Per-Chlorine. The refreshment of the water inside the container is constantly performed in order to continuously preserve the water quality.
- 5th and 6th Washing Stages: During these two consecutive phases, the feed enters a device similar to that of the 4th stage and is disinfected using a specific dose of Per-Sidine.
- 7th and 8th Washing Stages: The initial feed is rinsed in a process similar to that of the previous stages. At the end of each level the product is washed with fresh water.
- Centrifuge: After the final washing stage, the vegetable is dewatered using centrifugal force in order to extract the water absorbed by the final product.
- Processing the Product: Based on the final product type, production is divided into 3 different methods:

Dried Onion:

- 1-After the dewatering stage, the onion enters the slicing machine and the desired product emerges sliced.
- 2-The products then enter the UV machine in order to complete the disinfection process.
- 3-Once the UV radiation is complete, the onion is placed into the drier which, employing a continuous mechanism and using the radiation-convection drying technique preserves the aroma and the taste twice as much.
- 4-After the drying process is complete the goods are transferred to the winnow section for sorting.

Fresh Vegetable

Fresh chopped product: The feed enters the chopping chamber and after formulation is transformed into mixed vegetable which is transferred to refrigerated storage once the packaging is complete.

Dried Vegetable:

- 1-Upon dewatering, the product enters the UV machine in order to complete the disinfection process.
- 2-After UV radiation, the vegetable enters the dehydration device. This machine has a continuous mechanism and employing the convection-radiation results in the preservation of the aroma and the taste twice as much.
- 3-Once the products are dried, the sorting takes place.
